

we're in an epistemic crisis.

we don't wrestle with ideas anymore: we prompt machines. our schools and universities no longer pursue truth. the internet, once a tool for exploration, has become a weapon of mass surveillance.

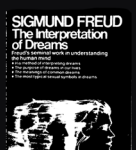

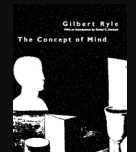

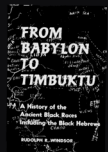

we're beginning to accept what we're told about the world, about ourselves, and who we should become.

but throughout history, from the greek agora to the french salon to the harlem renaissance, every epistemic crisis has always produced a counter-cultural "underground."

cyph is today's "underground" for the digital age: built for wisdom, not artificial intelligence.

cyph:

- surfaces suppressed ideas, banned resources, and artifacts that have been buried
- connects you to rare thinkers across the world
- maps your thinking through your living wisdom passport we're making curiosity cool again. come build the counter-culture with us.
